

supporting chunk(s)
— The trial length is described as a 14-day free trial in the pricing-tier document

Synthesizer:
(decision text truncated)
611 tok

Synthesizer:
abstained=True, 3 citation(s)

Planner: (decision text truncated)
groq/groq[1] · 980 tok ·

Planner:
multi_angle (3 angle(s)) — Although the question seems singular, internal docs may define trial length differently for various products, tiers, or regions, and prior narrow lookup missed evidence. Broadening into multiple angles ensures we capture all relevant definitions.

Escalated: re-planned as multi_angle after the cheap path came up empty

Researcher[a0]:
done
groq/groq[1] · 2292 tok

Researcher[a2]:
done
groq/groq[1] · 2058 tok

Researcher[a1]:
failover — RateLimitError — advancing to next key
groq[1]

Researcher[a1]:
done
groq/groq[2] · 2294 tok

Researcher[a0]: 4 supporting chunk(s)
— The marketing-facing pricing document states a 14-day free trial, while the cont

Researcher[a1]: 4 supporting chunk(s)
The contract

Final answer: The documents conflict on the trial length: the marketing-facing pricing tiers describe a 14-day free trial, while the contract-summary/legal terms specify a 30-day evaluation period.

citations: 09_pricing_tiers::0, 09_pricing_tiers::1, 10_contract_trial_terms::0,

